REDUCE WRINKLES

Fractora by Invasix, Ltd. is a new fractional skin treatment using radio frequency (RF) for rejuvenation and remodeling, offering physicians a new level of precision and control in fractional skin resurfacing, says the company. Benefits include an increase in collagen production, a youthful looking complexion, the smoothing of fine lines and wrinkles and the evening of tone and pigmentation. Physicians utilize the device to send concentrated beams of RF at problematic or aged skin, adjusting it according to the client's specific needs. The beams treat the skin, while simultaneously heating below the dermis to stimulate the growth of new collagen fibers. As the treated area heals, firmer, smoother new skin forms. Treatments are relatively non-invasive, and require little recovery time. www.invasix.com
