

LIGHT BRIGHT

“What can I do for lackluster skin?” Skin care consultants, behind-the-counter beauty advisors, aestheticians, dermatologists, and plastic surgeons are asked this question all the time, and it’s not an easy one to answer largely because lackluster skin means different things to different people. It can be a complexion dulled by textural irregularity, sun damage, age spots, or even redness in the Rosacea-prone.

Regardless of the discoloration issue, InMode’s Lumecca intense pulsed light (IPL) device has it covered. Lumecca selectively pinpoints and corrects facial pigmentation, superficial vessels, skin texture, and sun damage using selective photothermolysis. Lumecca’s high peak power—about three times that of other IPL devices—is said to be the secret to its success. Other pluses include improved patient comfort and safety. Get the full scoop on Lumecca here: inmodemd.com/devices/lumecca/Lumecca Before N After 2 Nelson_opt

—Amanda Ashley - See more at:

<http://www.plasticsurgerypractice.com/2014/10/hot-stuff-6/#sthash.niGNV9W0.dpuf>